MOTHER AND 2 CHILDREN SLAIN BY STRANGLER

Bodies Found In Pittsburgh Home With Ropes Knotted Around Throats.

HUSBAND RUSHES HOME

Victims Members of Family of University of Pittsburgh Instructor.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, June 19—Coroner's physicians reported today an autopsy showed strangulation caused the death of Mrs. Eleanor Feely, 30-year-old wife of a University of Pittsburgh instructor and their two children.

The announcement was made by Dr. T. R. Helmbold shortly after detectives disclosed the discovery of a man's thumb print on a hammer found near the bodies.

The autopsy showed an ice pick nearly penetrated Mrs. Feely's heart and that her son, Bobby, 5, had been hit on the head with a hammer before being strangled.

Chief Bertillon Operator L. P. Dumont said the discovery of the thumb print strengthened the theory the three had been murdered, but other investigators held to the belief Mrs Feely killed the children and then herself.

A landlord found the three late last night in a rear room of their seven room apartment.

Officers said all had been strangled by makeshift tourniquets and stabbed with an ice pick.

Mrs. Feely was the wife of Marion J. Feely, assistant professor of physical education at Pitt. He had returned home from Potteraville, N. J., where he attended a boys' summer camp.

The children were Bobby, 5, who had just recovered from scarlet fever, and Janice, 3. Bobby lay on his cot, still wearing his overalls, and the girl's body was in her crib. Police said the slayer twisted a bathrobe cord around the boy's neck, and a rope around the girl's neck.

Mrs. Feely's body lay face down, on the floor, a rope of hemp looped around her neck. Under her throat was a claw hammer, its handle thrust through the rope. It had been turned until the rope was twisted tight.

On this hammer, Bertillon Operator Dumont said he found the man's right thumb print.

HOUSE PASSES BILL REGULATING BUYING

Those Selling to U. S. Must Observe Minimum Hour and Wage Laws.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 19—Legislation to place maximum-hour, minimum-wage and other labor limitations on persons who sell goods and materials to the government was passed today by the house.

It was approved by a voice vote.

The measure, differing widely from the Walsh bill passed in the senate last session, faced a conference between the senate and house in an effort to recognize the differences.

As approved by the house after being brought to the point of passage in a special night session last night, the so-called Walsh-Healey bill provided that for principal contractors in amounts of $10,000 or more, except for articles purchasable ordinarily on the open market, these labor requirements would apply:

The 40-hour week and 8-hour day; prevailing wage in the locality; minimum working age of 16 years for males and 18 years for females; prohibition of sweatshops, home-work and convict labor.

DELPHOS STAR GAZER REPORTS NEW FIND

Harvard Observatory Reports Discovery Confirmed in Three Countries.

By The Associated Press

CAMBRIDGE, O., June 19—Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory, said early today a new star, which was visible to the naked eye, was reported to the observatory by three astronomers, each in a different country.

Dr. Shapley said the star, a third magnitude Nova, two degrees southwest of Delta Cephei, was discovered in the "milky way" in the constellation of Cepheus and would be directly overhead in the early morning.

The observatory director said L. C. Peltier of Delphos, O., an amateur astronomer who recently discovered a new comet, reported finding the star.

At the same time, he said, the observatory received cables from Axel V. Nielsen of Aarhas, Denmark, and Eppe Loreta of Bolgna, Italy. Both men reported seeing the same star.

New Star Is Exploding

By The Associated Press

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., June 19—The new star which blazed up suddenly in the sky last night is exploding at the rate of 500 miles a second, Dr. Otto Struve, director of Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, reported today.

The speed was determined by spectrum studies made by Dr. George Van Biesbroeck of the observatory, when the Nova was first observed in telescopes last night, Dr. Struve said. Light from the star showed that hydrogen and helium gas was being thrown off by the faraway sun at that rate.

The explosion, the observatory director explained, was what made the star visible to the naked eye.

Before some mysterious force started the stellar blast, Dr. Struve said, the star was of the fifteenth magnitude, and could be seen only in powerful telescopes. Astronomers' sky maps of 1930 identified it at that size.

As a result of the explosion, the star brightened to the magnitude of 2½ by last night, Dr. Struve added. Tonight, he said, it would be still brighter.

MAP RELIEF PLANS FOR DROUTH AREAS

Northwest Gets Rain but Plains Country Still Suffering.

By The Associated Press

The Pacific northwest and the drouth-suffering southeastern states were relieved by rain today but the showers dodged a domain of heat over the middle plains.

New records for high June temperatures were marked up in scattered hot spots of the central states, where the mercury rose past the 100-degree level at a midsummer clip.

Farmers turned more seriously to the problems of drouth and grasshoppers, and some officials pressed for government aid.

Gov. Thomas Berry of South Dakota listened to drouth reports from over his state yesterday, and concluded: "Throughout a large portion of the state, people are going to need more help from the federal government this summer and winter than ever before."

The southeastern portion of South Dakota was an exception.

ONLY CLOUDBURST WILL HALT FIGHT

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 19—Despite heavily overcast skies, threatening further rain, Promoter Mike Jacobs declared this afternoon only a cloudburst would halt the 15-round heavyweight match slated tonight between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling, at the Yankee stadium.

Jacobs planned to hold off any consideration of further postponement until tonight.

At the same time the promoter said if the weather proved bad enough to compel a second postponement the fight will be put over to next Monday night.

The weather man forecast clearing skies later in the day.

STATE RELIEF BILL FACES NEW SENATE FIGHT

Controversial Measure Goes to Upper Branch After Passage in House.

ALLOWANCES INCREASED

Further Advance Blocked by Action of Rural Legislators.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 19—A new fight in the senate lay ahead of the controversial and drastic new bill to care for Ohio's needy today after its stormy but successful flight through the house.

Slightly modified by amendments to raise the family allowance scale from $8-$12 to $9-$12, and still appropriating $6,500,000, the bill passed the house late yesterday, 84 to 17, and went to the senate. The upper body will convene Monday night and is expected to send the bill to a committee for at least partial rewriting.

An amendment to add $2000,000 to its appropriation failed when rural Democrats and Republicans withstood the best efforts of urban Democrats and the pleas of welfare leaders, the latter contending the family allowances were on a "starvation" scale.

The relief bill, through the unsuccessful $2,000,000 amendment, became embroiled in renewed controversy over Gov. Davey's proposal to extempt food purchased for home consumption from the three per cent retail sales tax.

When Rep. John T. De Righter Democrat of Cuyahoga, introduced the amendment. Republican Leader William McCulloch asked if the funds would be available and if approval of Davey's proposal would reduce them.

Says Relief Not Involved

De Righter and house Finance Chairman Julian H. Schweller, Democrat of Putnam, said there would be a balance that size in the general fund at the end of the year, Schweller adding that the sales tax did not enter into the relief question.

But, Rep. Ed R. King, Republican of Vinton, said the finance director and the state auditor gave $6,500,000 as the only available funds for relief and McCulloch declared that repeal of the food sales tax might force the state relief commission "to give rubber checks for the extra $2,000,000."

Gov. Davey himself asked the legislature to appropriate $3,000,000, presumably from the general revenue fund, as a safeguard for schools against loss of revenue through the proposed repeal. He also asked extension of the cigaret tax another year to March 31, 1938, so schools could borrow against it.

Declaring school officials throughout Ohio were apprehensive of the proposed repealer causing schools to suffer, Gov. Davey reiterated nevertheless his belief that repeal would not affect school financing.

Will Recall Committee

Taxation Committee Chairman P. E. Ward, Republican of Geauga, said he would recall the committee to consider the repealer a day before the house reconvened. However, when the house recessed after passing the relief bill, the date of return was left to the discretion of Speaker J. Freer Bittinger.

Other legislative business:

The house passed and sent to the senate a bill to permit county commissioners and auditors to postpone real estate appraisals, due this and next year, until 1942.

Other bills going to the senate included measures appropriating $15,000 for the state's participation in the annual convention of Disabled American Veterans of the World War if it is held here next year; authorized police and firemen's pension boards to borrow money in anticipation of current tax collections.

Rep. Hugh R. Fuller, Democrat of Trumbull, introduced a bill to abolish deficiency judgments. Senate Democratic Leader Paul P. Yoder introduced the senate's skeleton session a bill to acquire the home of Paul Lawrence Dunbar, late Negro poet, at Dayton and establish it as a state memorial and museum.

KIDNAPER DIES ON GALLOWS

Oklahoman First Person Executed Under Federal Lindbergh Law.

WARNS SON OF TROUBLE

Arthur Gooch, 27, Pays Penalty for Taking Officers Across State Line.

By The Associated Press

McALESTER, Okla., June 19—Arthur Gooch, 27, convicted kidnaper of two Texas officers, was hanged at the state prison here today—the first person executed for kidnaping under the federal Lindbergh law.

The gallows trap was sprung at 9:06 a. m., by Rich Owen, who has electrocuted 53 men, but never before witnessed a hanging.

Gooch walked without aid to the gallows and up the steps.

Clasping the hand of the prison chaplain, Gooch stepped upon the trap, adjusted the lapels of his pocketless black coat and stood for the placing of the mask over his head and the adjusting of the noose.

Fifteen minutes after the trap was sprung Gooch was pronounced dead.

A crowd estimated at more than 350 persons, including eight women, witnessed the execution.

The condemned man's death-cell farewell to his six-year-old son, Billy Joe, was "Don't get into any trouble, son." The boy had pleaded with death-row guards, "Don't hang daddy."

A year and four days ago the kidnaper was sentenced to death for abducting two Paris, Tex., officers, R. N. Baker and H. R. Marlin, and bringing them into Oklahoma. One of the officers was shoved through a showcase and injured during a scuffle, thus making the death penalty applicable.

ROBOT 'CHUTE JUMPER TO MAKE LEAP HERE

Invention of Upper Sandusky Man To Be Demonstrated at Airport Sunday.

A "robot" parachute jumper will be exhibited in a delayed jump from 5,000 feet altitude Sunday at 2 p. m. at the airport by its inventor, William H. Kuhn, 28, of Upper Sandusky.

The robot will be hurled from a plane piloted by Bob Blaser of Bucyrus and, its inventor says, will drop 4,000 feet before automatically opening the parachute when 1,000 feet above the ground.

Admission to the airport will be free. The prime purpose of the robot is to provide a safe method for testing 'chutes, particularly those to be used in delayed jumps, which are considered the most dangerous, Kuhn said.

The robot, which has been named "Rob Highlow," is six feet in size and operates from a clock-work motor. The 'chute opens on a time-clock basis a specified number of seconds after the dummy has been thrown from a plane.

Kuhn himself has made 189 parachute jumps since his first one, made when he was 16. He now is an employe of the census bureau of the United States department of commerce.

Kuhn has made a number of exhibitions with Rob Highlow, including one at Toledo's Transcontinental airport which attracted considerable attention.

Mr. Cusic gave a report of the convention during a business session. Later a smoker was held.

Act To End Strike At Strife-Torn Kent Plant

Pickets Still Surround Factory as Company Guards Are Charged With Shooting.

By The Associated Press

KENT, O., June 19—Small groups of pickets guarded their posts before the bullet-scarred plant of the Black & Decker Electric Co. here today as city, county and state authorities collaborated in an attempt to end the most serious labor disturbance in the city's history.

Forty company guards, held in the plant yesterday as bullets shattered the windows and nicked the brick and concrete walls, were removed under guard last night and held in the city jail on John Doe warrants charging them with shooting with intent to wound.

Mayor W. I. Harvey of Kent said the men would be arraigned today.

The mayor, who accompanied the party which removed the guards from the plant, added that "they were very anxious to get out."

Six men were wounded in the gunfire yesterday and a number of others were affected temporarily by tear gas. The firing ceased after the warrants had been sworn out by Douglass Rupp, president of the Portage County Central Labor union.

Charges Gas Used

The disturbance started when the guards entered the plant, William Crayford, local president of the International Association of Machinists which called a strike at the plant May 3, charged that the guards used tear gas when they broke through the picket lines.

Crayford said some of the strikers retaliated with rocks and the "outsiders" opened fire with rifles and shotguns. Intermittent gunfire for several hours brought National Guard observers to the plant.

Of the six wounded, three were on the side of the strikers, three inside the plant.

Kent, the home town of Gov. Davey, is a city of 8,735 population. The Twin Motor Coach Co. and the Lamson & Session Co., makers of precision machinery, employing together about 1,000 persons, are the two major firms. It also is the home of Kent State university.

The Black & Decker Co. employed about 400 men. The strikers are demanding a 10 per cent wage increase, a 35-hour week and collective bargaining. The machinists' union claims a majority of the employes as members.

Company Statement

Company officials issued the following statement:

"The company's net operating losses since moving to Kent in 1930 amount to over $213,000. The majority of the employes are not in sympathy with this strike.

"The company has been continually negotiating with the strikers and after agreements had been reached with the union committee on two occasions, the strikers rejected them.

"By reason of the participation of rubber workers residing in Akron, 12 miles away, Black & Decker employes have been intimidated. Shortly after the strike began, 311 of the 450 employes petitioned Mayor Harvey for protection so that they might continue working, but without avail."

Officials declined to discuss the company's plans for the future.

Dick Coleman, one of the strike leaders and chairman of the Twin Coach local of the International Automobile Workers union, said "organized labor in Portage county doesn't believe in violence in strike-breaking agencies.

"We were very sorry to see the outbreak of violence," he said, "but we had to fight fire with fire."

Marion Man Is Observer at Strike

Lt. Col. T. E. Andrews of East Fairground street is one of several National Guard observers sent to Kent by Governor Martin L. Davey and Ohio Adjutant General Emil Marx of the U. S. National Guard to keep them informed as to conditions in the electric company strike. It is understood that the governor and adjutant general will rely on reports of the observers to determine whether additional National Guard troops should be sent to Kent.

Colonel Andrews left Marion last night at 9 less than an hour after he received the call for duty from the office of the adjutant general.

DEPOSED TOWNSEND LEADER IS JAILED

Rev. Alfred J. Wright Accused of Violating Election Laws of State.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, June 19 — Rev. Alfred J. Wright, former manager for the Townsend pension plan movement, was arrested late yesterday on a charge of violating Ohio election laws and found the half hour he spent in jail a "unique experience."

"It was almost fun, even at 66," he said.

Earlier yesterday he had been replaced as northeastern Ohio manager of Townsend activities. The warrant for his arrest was signed by Philip M. Moore of Youngstown, campaign manager for Thomas Lindsay, unsuccessful candidate in the nineteenth district Democratic congressional primary. M. J. Kirwan of Youngstown, indorsed by the National Union for Social Justice, was victor at the primary.

Moore contended during the campaign that Mr. Wright, who served two other terms in the Ohio general code relating to "improper influence by solicitation" or other unlawful methods of voters, Mr. Wright said yesterday, was the agent of the Townsend group's interests in helping Lindsay.

CONFEREES IN AGREEMENT

Adoption of Measure Will Ring Down Curtain on Congress Session.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 19 — A newly shaped tax plan designed to raise $800,000,000 through penalty taxes on undivided corporation profits and other major revisions of the revenue structure aroused emphatic dissent among some senators today but administration leaders said it would go through congress Saturday night.

They expected that President Roosevelt would welcome the plan, which was agreed upon in a senate-house conference committee last night. It goes far to meet his stiff demands for stiff taxes to induce corporations to distribute more income to stockholders and for additional taxation on dividends.

The conference agreement must now be ratified by both chambers. It is generally expected to encounter no serious trouble in the house, but some senate foes of the bill went so far today as to say privately that nearly half of the membership of that body already had determined to vote against it. No filibuster was predicted, however, and administration leaders hoped to pass the bill in time to adjourn congress into Saturday night.

Represents Compromise

The bill, which represents a compromise between measures previously passed by senate and house, includes:

"Normal" taxes on a corporation net income, ranging from 8 per cent on the first $2,000 to 15 per cent on all over $40,000. (At present such taxes range from 12½ to 15 per cent).

New graduated taxes on undistributed corporation earnings, ranging from 7 per cent on the first to 10 per cent of earnings retained, to 27 per cent on all earnings retained in excess of 60 per cent.

A provision giving special treatment to small corporations by applying the 7 per cent tax either to the first 10 per cent of undistributed earnings, or to $5,000 of such earnings, whichever is the larger.

A provision applying the normal individual income tax of 4 per cent, as well as income surtaxes, to dividends received by corporation stockholders. At present dividends are exempt from the 4 per cent tax.

A clause putting the capital stock tax from $1.40 to $1 per $1,000 of stock, but continuing existing excess profits taxes.

A temporary, $2,000,000 "windfall" levy on persons described as "unjustly enriched" because they escaped paying the invalidated AAA's processing levies.

$800 Million in Sight

Representative Vinson, Democrat of Kentucky, declared the whole bill should produce more than $800,000,000 to meet the administration call for funds to finance the farm plans and the added cost of pre-payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Two of the senate conferees, Senators George, Democrat of Georgia, and Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, announced they would file a minority report attacking the undistributed profits tax as "discriminatory and injurious."

The conference agreement made public last night revealed that the conferees had finally decided to reject a senate proposal to increase the surtaxes on individual incomes.

So confident was Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, that congress would adjourn Saturday night that he packed his suitcase to leave Sunday for Philadelphia, where he will be permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention.

The complete agreement in a senate-house conference on the form of the new tax bill raised the leaders' hopes several notches.

The other major bar to quick adjournment already had been removed when congress hailed to President Roosevelt yesterday the bill carrying $1,425,000,000 for relief next fiscal year. This, with unexpended balances and other items, will permit a $3,271,000,000 program of relief and public works. The sum may spell relief jobs for 3,000,000 on the basis of present costs.

Other Money Bills

Other big money bills were going through congress fast. The house agreed last night to a conference report on the $992,524,000 treasury-postoffice supply bill. Senate approval is slated to send it to President Roosevelt.

The senate moved today toward a vote on a bill to enlarge the merchant marine through direct subsidies, replacing the present ocean mail contracts. A similar measure has passed the house, but whether the two chambers could reach complete agreement shortly after adjournment was uncertain.

Marion Navy League's Farewell Gift Boosts Fund for Doughboy Statue

THE Marion County Navy league, an almost forgotten organization of the stirring World war days, yesterday made its final bow as a patriotic order, and in dissolving contributed substantially to the perpetuating of the memory of all Marion county boys and men who did their bit toward peace.

The society, organized in 1918 with a nucleus of women of Captain William Hendricks chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, yesterday gave the chapter $89.20 to be placed in a fund for the purchase of a $1,000 bronze figure of a doughboy which will be placed on the D. A. R. memorial boulder on the landscaped grounds on the west side of the Delaware road, opposite the Harding Memorial.

The proposal to purchase the figure was made when the boulder was set in place, but it probably will be several years before the chapter members will have the funds to realize their ambition. In the meantime the fund of several hundred dollars and yesterday's contribution, will remain in the bank, accruing interest.

The figure, which will be seven feet high, is the official "doughboy" selected by World war veterans as their memorial. When it will be placed on the boulder [illegible] which the D. A. R. chapter placed on the grounds two years ago with the permission of the Harding Memorial association. On the boulder, which is set on a cement foundation, is a bronze tablet with the inscription:

WELL, PRINCESS, THIS IS WHAT I'D CALL A PERFECT JUNE NIGHT - AND A JUNE NIGHT IS ABOUT THE LOVELIEST THING WE CAN HOPE TO SEE IN THIS UNCERTAIN WORLD
HONEST, IT'S GRAND— THE STARS ARE HANGING DOWN JUST LIKE THE ANGELS WAS ALL HOLDING A BIG LANTERN ON THE END OF A STRING
THIS IS THE SORT OF A NIGHT THAT MAKES ME REALIZE HOW UNIMPORTANT AND INSIGNIFICANT A CREATURE MAN REALLY IS — JUST LOOK AT THE STARS - MOST OF THEM BIGGER THAN OUR ENTIRE EARTH
IT SEEMS TO ME ANY TIME A MAN STARTS ACTING CONCEITED AND PUFFED-UP— HE SHOULD BE COMPELLED TO STUDY THE PLANETS UNTIL HE REALIZED HE'S NOT MUCH BIGGER THAN A GRAIN OF DUST ON A GEEMS EYELASH

SPRINGFIELD MAN FREED OF CHARGE

Jury Acquits C. A. Haslep of Murder After Deliberating Nine Hours.

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., June 13—A jury of seven men and five women acquitted Clarence A. Haslep, 37, early today of a charge that he beat Luther Chapman, 31, to death.

The jury deliberated nine hours after receiving the charge of Judge Golden C. Davis. The court instructed the jurors they might return verdicts ranging from acquittal to the death penalty.

Chapman was found in a locked garage near his own residence Jan. 3. He had been beaten and seriously injured and later died.

The state charged that Haslep killed Chapman because he loved Mrs. Chapman. Mrs. Chapman took the stand for the prosecution and testified concerning intimacies with Haslep during the time he roomed at the Chapman home in suburban Carlisle.

Haslep testified in his own behalf that he was in bed at the home of his parents the night Chapman was beaten. His parents took the witness stand and corroborated his testimony.

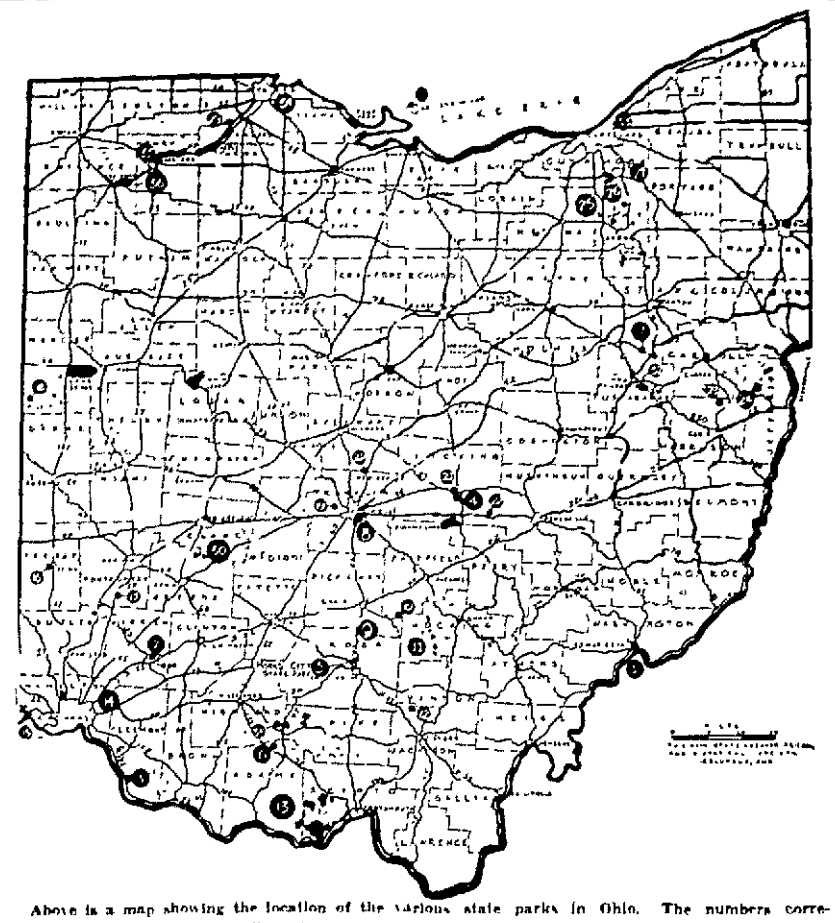
Marion To Take Part in State Park Observance Arranged for Sunday



Above is a map showing the location of the various state parks in Ohio. The numbers corresponding to those on the map will be found in the news story below. The map also indicates main highways in the park areas.

Members of the Marion Junior Chamber of Commerce were completing plans today to join other junior chambers over the state in observance of State Park day, set for Sunday by proclamation of Gov. Davey.

Junior chamber members from Marion, Newark and Zanesville will meet Sunday at 2 p. m. at Moundbuilders' State park in Newark as their share of the day's observance.

About 10 members of the local chamber, with their wives, are expected to make the trip. R. N. Heininger, president is in charge of arrangements. All others interested are urged to attend. A crowd of about 2,000 is expected to take part in the Newark observance.

The program will include a moundbuilder ceremonial rite, given by costumed Boy Scouts; a 10-minute talk concerning the problems Ohio has faced in state park promotion; band music and an inspection of the mounds at the park.

Guides Provided

Boy Scout guides then will direct visitors on inspection trips of the nearby Octogon and Flint Ridge state parks. Picnic facilities will be provided at the Moundbuilders' park.

State parks all over Ohio will be scenes of similar programs Sunday, as part of the Ohio Junior Chamber's project for 1936 of promoting interest in and development of state parks.

A 140-mile circuit route to and from Newark was suggested today by M. E. Baldwin, secretary of the Marion Auto club, who yesterday made a survey trip over the route. The route: Marion to Delaware on route 23, route 37 to Granville, route 16 from Granville to Newark. In Newark, take route 79 to the southwest edge of the city, where the Moundbuilders' park is located.

The return trip: North from Newark to Fredericktown on route 13, left in Fredericktown on route 95 through Mt. Gilead. A stretch or rather rough pavement lies between Fredericktown and Mt. Gilead, necessitating somewhat slower driving for a short time.

Location of Parks

Names of the state parks indicated by numbers on the above map follow:

And Alf was not much of a speaker; he would not be very good over the radio. When people heard Franklin over the radio they would be for Woodring, too. Woodring was popular and the current running his way, while the Republican party had been badly split in factions by the Reed administration. Alf talked about reducing taxes, a budget system and so forth—he had a lot of economical ideas—but Woodring had been clever enough to spike the enemy guns on that. Woodring had met farm impoverishment in 1931 by reducing assessed valuations with a tax of 1.33 mills on tangible property, the lowest since 1917. His legislature had also passed a "wish" budget system. It merely called for the old familiar balance.

Kansas had a record crop of 239,000,000 bushels in 1931 and this year the crop would not be one third of that, with prices still lower. People would welcome that tax-cut all the more as a result. They would not bother about how the next administration was to meet the deficit. Alf might be a practical business man, but—How would he get away with that deficit problem? This did not imply that it was not good party policy to go Woodring one better for campaign purposes.

But Alf refused to accept the advice of the augurs. Private business aside politics had become his main business just as it was in the Blue Moose campaign. Of course everyone knew that he liked people, but it was not realized how many people he knew.

For years he had been working his inquiry pump back and forth on his travels in Kansas. As state chairman he knew the conservatives and the radicals, office holders, office seekers, precinct committeemen, legislators, farmers, editors, bankers, merchants and school teachers. This was only a start for him once he got into the business of politics for eighteen hours a day. Driving his own car, sometimes taking young daughter Peggy with him, he was on the move getting better acquainted.

It is told how, with his introductory "I'm Alf Landon," he might walk into a country store or to meet a farmer in the field. He did not slap a man on the back or call him by his first name which he had picked up from a neighbor. He had his own method of putting himself over. It was really getting down to brass tacks, figuring out the business of government just as an individual would his own business—how to make the dollars and the pennies too, count.

There were other reductions in the cost of government than lower tax levies and assessments. He was for them, but believed in having enough money from other sources to meet next year's certain deficit. It was time the gears of state administration meshed. As for the new budget law, it lacked teeth. There must be an end of warrants to met deficits, of balancing budgets by borrowing.

He was really outlining his plan of the cash basis law and other reforms with which I shall deal later. He said that some of the changes would hurt, but "frankly"—a favorite word of his which he makes one of his most winning—it was better to be hurt a little now than to get some knockout bruises later. When the rival candidates decided that it was time for them to begin an active canvass Alf Landon had the nomination "sewed up," just by his "frankly," without soft soap.

Tomorrow: Read chapters on Governor Landon's colorful career entitled Dead In Earnest And Promises To the Test.

CHIEF AND WIFE WED 33 YEARS AGO

GALION, June 19—Chief of Police Frank Cook took Thursday off duty to celebrate with Mrs. Cook their thirty-third wedding anniversary. They spent the day quietly.

Chief Cook and his wife have spent their entire married life in Galion. Mrs. Cook was formerly Ora Mae Bedey. They were married June 18, 1903, at the First Lutheran parsonage here.

Chief Cook was formerly in the cigar business, and was employed in the old wheel works here, before entering police service. He has been chief of the department for seven years.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Gallstones.

NOT LONG ago I wrote about a new operation for gallstones. Since then many inquiries have been made concerning this procedure.

I did not mean to imply that this operation was to be used in all cases as a substitute for other methods of treatment. It was intended as an explanation of a method advised by several surgeons who specialize in this work.

Many write to inquire whether it is possible to be relieved of gallstones without operation. They hope some chemical or drug may dissolve these stones. Unfortunately, no medicine has as yet been perfected to dissolve gallstones.

There is no doubt that a great number of persons unwisely reject the operation for gallstones. This surgical procedure is no longer regarded as serious. In the hands of a competent surgeon the operation is a simple one.

The great danger of gallstones is in their neglect. It is not safe to delay or to avoid a needed operation. Neglect leads to further infection and inflammation, and even rupture of the gall bladder. When these complications occur the dangers and complications of the operation are markedly increased. The patient is subjected to unnecessary risks.

For many years society has faced the problem of gallstones. Although the actual cause is not known many theories are presented. But it is generally believed that the stones primarily form as the result of some infection of the gall bladder.

Yet, despite this accepted theory, many operations are performed which reveal no evidence of infection. In such cases, perhaps, the stones form as a result of some vitamin deficiency. For this reason it is advised that the diet be chosen to include an abundance of vitamins and thus prevent stone formation.

I am often asked whether all cases of gallstones demand operation. This is a difficult question to answer. It depends entirely upon the individual case. Including the size, location and number of stones, as well as the symptoms that are present.

PHILADELPHIA EXTENDS WELCOME TO DEMOCRATS

Flag-Bedecked Convention City Greets Advance Guard of National Parley To Open Next Week.

By the Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, June 19—Flag-draped Philadelphia extended the hand of welcome to the advance guard of Democrats today while speculation over the platform to be adopted by the party's national convention next week intensified.

Senator Bone, Democrat of Washington, a member of the senate munitions committee, announced today he would fight to have the Democratic platform include planks advocating nationalization of warship building and some arms manufacture and the enactment of permanent neutrality legislation.

He declared his action had the approval of Chairman Nye, Republican of North Dakota, and Senator Clark, Democrat of Missouri.

Government Monopoly

His munitions plank, tentatively worded, would call for "such nationalization as will give the government a monopoly in fabricating war munitions and instrumentalities into their final form for combat purposes."

He made clear this would include naval vessels, arms and ammunition used by the army and navy and would apply during peace as well as war.

Leaders of the new deal were closeted in Washington, drawing up suggested statements of policy on such controversial issues as farm aid, money, and relief.

There was no authoritative indication as to the planks to be submitted on some of these issues, but word from the capital said Secretary Wallace may seek to have the convention's resolutions committee approve a farm plank embracing four features.

The plank would endorse:

The present AAA soil conservation program with subsidy payments to farmers.

The principle of crop production control within constitutional limits.

The present reciprocal trade agreement policy.

Some plan for commodity loans to farmers.

Support Doubtful

The question in the minds of some administration leaders, it was reported, is whether the resolutions committee will approve the suggestions advanced by Wallace and his aids.

This question was raised, it was said, because some leading Democratic members of congress have opposed crop control and other AAA measures.

While the four principal features were expected to comprise the bulk of the administration's farm plank suggestions, it was indicated that aid to cooperative associations also would be suggested. The plank also is expected to urge continued research into industrial uses for farm products.

Gov. Talmadge of Georgia, who had planned to attend the Democratic convention, has changed his mind and cancelled hotel reservations.

LARUE TRUCK HITS CONCRETE BRIDGE

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, June 18—A truck belonging to A. M. Benson of La-Rue and driven by his son was badly damaged yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock when it struck a cement bridge north of the John Fox farm on Route 31. The truck went into the ditch after the crash. The driver was not injured. The cab and front part of the truck were badly damaged.

'VENDOL' GREAT HE DECLARES

Was surprised at quick relief from gas in stomach, dizziness and headaches. Proved a wonderful nerv-ine and now sleeps sound every night.

"I just can't help praising such a wonderful medicine like Vendol. It has done worlds of good and surprised me by the quick relief it gave from a sour, gassy condition in my stomach," says Mr. William T. Ward of 567 Lathrop St., Columbus, Ohio.

MR. WILLIAM T. WARD

"I suffered daily from constipation which poisoned my system and kept me feeling tired, listless and robbed me of my strength and energy. I would feel dizzy and things seemed to be spinning around. My head ached, spots floated before my eyes, my tongue was coated and I had a bad taste in my mouth.

"From the very start, I could feel the difference because the first few doses of Vendol ended the gas in my stomach and it wasn't long till I could eat whatever I wanted and never have a heavy feeling in my stomach nor acid risings.

"Vendol is great for constipation and relieved me quickly and now I'm regular every day, never have a dizzy feeling nor see the little spots before my eyes. It cleaned my system of accumulated poisons that were making me feel I had everything in the world wrong with me."

Begin at once taking Vendol if you are troubled with constipation or upset stomach. It is the best thing you can take and will do a lot of good for you the same as it has for hundreds all around here.

All druggists sell Vendol and it is especially recommended in this city by Heaney & Cooper.

PROSPECT TO DEDICATE NEW ATHLETIC FIELD

Completed as WPA Project; Track and Field Meet Set for July 4.

One of the new WPA athletic field and track at the Community in Prospect, recently completed as a WPA project, is to be dedicated July 4, it was announced today by Paul Keller, Prospect high school athletic coach, who heads the committee in charge of the program. The Prospect P.-T. A., city park board and school athletic associations are cooperating in making a full day's program.

The track and field meet, open to all boys wishing to enter, will be the feature of the activities, which are to include a basket dinner to be served by the P.-T. A. The athletic field was constructed with federal funds totaling $11,000 and will give Prospect one of the few modern running tracks in the county.

36 Men Employed

The project was directed by Howard Johnson, who directed the work of 36 men employed five months. In addition to constructing the quarter mile cinder path oval which is six lanes wide, the workmen completed the track layout including pits for high and broad jumping, pole vaulting and shot putting. Four new horseshoe courts and a standard size baseball diamond were installed, existing tennis courts were repaired and a four-foot ornamental stone wall, 1,600 feet long, was constructed by the WPA laborers.

The track and field meet planned by Coach Keller will include all regulation high school events and the 880, mile and medley relays. Invitations are being mailed to high school coaches throughout this section of the state to enter any athletes they wish in the open competition. Contestants will be split into two divisions, one for elementary grades and the other for high school or older athletes. A trophy cup is offered to the group representing a school, city or organization which collects the largest number of points.

One Requirement

Only one restriction is placed upon athletes who wish to enter. They will not be permitted upon the cinder track without regulation spikes or tennis shoes, and they must furnish their own equipment for the field events. The program will begin shortly after 9 a. m., with preliminary events set for the morning and dinner being served at 11:30 o'clock.

Members of the Prospect park board, Ben McNeal, president, Harry Gast, secretary and Charles Kirby, Mrs. Harold Osborn, president of the Prospect P.-T. A., are assisting Coach Keller in arrangements for the affair.

In Ohio History

(From the J. H. Siebert collection of Ohio historical articles for The Associated Press.)

JOHN SAXTON, PRINTER

John Saxton, who in 1815 established the Canton Repository and conducted it without interruption for 56 years, had the reputation of being the most genial editor and of publishing the cleanest newspaper in the state. He was born in Huntington, Pa., in 1792 and went to Canton when it had a population of only 300. He died at Canton on April 16, 1871 at the age of 81.

He was grandfather of Mrs. William McKinley. He literally practiced a deeply religious life and opened and closed his day with a brief reading from the Scriptures and prayer. He practiced his religion in his daily life and before the close of the day he had visited a number of homes where he knew there was poverty and sickness.

Pass the Salt.

The addition of a savory dish of third party rumors to the current month's bill of political fare increases the demand for more salt shakers Few, if any, of the political delicacies so abundant in the month of June every four years are meant to be eaten without being seasoned to the consumer's taste

A third party coalition of the followers of Fr. Coughlin, Dr. Townsend and the late Huey Long is not an impossibility, but it certainly is an improbability. Politics makes strange combinations, but there are limits even to strange combinations When it is remembered that old line parties have trouble reconciling factions, the difficulty of reaching a working arrangement among three so dissimilar minority movements as the Coughlinites, the Townsendites and the Share the Wealthers seems insurmountable.

If it could be done, it would be vitally important. Surmises that it would work direct injury to President Roosevelt's chances of reelection will be challenged sharply, of course. Many speculators, not willing to accept so unflattering an implication, will insist that it would be equally harmful to the Republican party. It is easy to be carried away to ridiculous conclusions by such fancies The safer way to treat the subject is to put plenty of salt on it and then to sample it judiciously. The United States has had more third party proposals than can be counted, but only a handful which ever meant anything on election day.

Tammany Boys.

More colorful, more compact and more powerful than any other group attending the Democratic convention next week will be the Tammany boys, 18 Pullman cars full of them.

They will whoop it up for President Roosevelt and the new deal with more zip and noise than they have put forth for any administration in half a century. Alfred E. Smith and Sen. Copeland won't be with them, but the Tammany boys are taking their own kind of a walk this year—hand in hand with Postmaster General Farley

Tammany Hall is an ancient and important political organization. It is, perhaps, more sinned against than sinning Over a period of 150 years it may have done a great deal of good, besides making its name a synonym for machine politics and corrupt municipal government.

The fact is, however, that President Roosevelt began his long political career as an opponent of Tammany Hall In 1932 he was supposed to be free of the Tammany taint, a supposition which did him no harm out in National Chairman Farley's "prairie states"

Last week a good deal was said about the possibility that "special interests" still were pulling the ropes behind the scenes at the Republican convention. Next week, by the same token, a great many Americans who never have been able to forget that James A Farley is typical of one side of the new deal are going to be disturbed deeply by the ringing cheers of the Tammany boys at Philadelphia.

Ugly Situation.

Reports of an alleged flogging of a Presbyterian minister and a young woman in the eastern Arkansas share cropper strike zone merely add to the series of disturbing stories coming from the cotton-belt for more than a year. But the addition is a significant one that should justify action being taken.

From time to time ugly charges have arisen from the clashes between textile strikers and operators. Prominent have been rumors about "peonage," about company stores mulcting poorly paid workers and about vigilante violence. In fact, it might be recalled that last year a federal investigator made a thorough scrutiny of the situation and rendered a detailed report that never was released

Common sense suggests many of the stories must have been exaggerated, but a desire for social justice prompts the insistence that something should be done to sift to the bottom of the matter with a view to making urgently needed adjustments Already Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, has implored the federal government to intervene and has received the pledge of President Roosevelt's secretary that the attorney general will investigate.

Since the cotton business crosses state lines and is one of the main arteries of southern industrial life, a federal investigation might well be justified, even though reservations must be made as to the extent to which federal action should follow. Certainly it is to be hoped that efforts to diagnose this grave industrial ailment will not lag as have, apparently, Secretary of Commerce Roper's inquiries into causes of unrest in the American merchant marine service Certainly no political considerations should be allowed to prevent the possibility of farm being played upon what appears to be an ugly situation

More Useful.

Many of his friends glad he didn't accept second place on the Republican ticket, will agree with Sen Vandenberg's modestly expressed belief he could be of more service to his county and party on the floor of the senate than as vice president

Frequently when the spirit of Republican opposition has been at its lowest ebb, Sen Vandenberg has startled the upper chamber into sitting up and taking notice by the militancy of his attack upon the worthy proposals Often, too, he has won his point

Last Monday again he reminded his fellow senators he is eternally vigilant When a bill to give civil service retirement privileges to agents of the federal bureau of investigation was being considered, Democratic Sen Wheeler took occasion to criticize J Edgar Hoover and his men and to thunder out a threat of investigating the bureau Quickly Sen Vandenberg rallied to the cause Contending the agents were "superbly organized" and risked their lives" while other government workers who enjoy retirement privilege sit in comfortable swivel chairs, he declared "no merit system was ever more scrupulous, administered inside the civil service than that of the FBI

The bill passed—perhaps leaving the senators friends more than ever convinced that he is being of service on the senate floor

Ah, Professor.

Apparently, a place is being prepared quietly for professors in Washington. It will be somewhere in the general vicinity of the back stairs and the ashcan.

The professors have tried hard, but they haven't quite been able to put themselves over as front parlor attractions. It isn't their fault: they can blame politicians for their troubles

Politicians asked too much of them. Instead of being permitted to think quietly in their libraries, the professors were shoved out in the range of fire from the opposition camp

They were exposed to unreasonable danger. They were asked to perform difficult, if not impossible, administrative feats. They were compelled to be amateur politicians, instead of professional thinkers

Out of it all there is emerging a popular conviction that while government should use as many trained thinkers as it can draft or buy, it should not abuse them. In the future, the professors are going to be better protected.

The new Republican leadership already is taking steps to hang a heavy curtain between its brain trusters and the public It is a good guess that a similar settlement will be made by Democratic leaders of the new deal brain trust question.

In all probability, the professor has come to government to stay. It is equally probable that in the future he will be given the advantage of a greater amount of seclusion in which to perform his service—seclusion amounting almost to confinement If that is the way it is to be, the professor deserves congratulations

Windows In Washington.

The real forgotten man has been discovered Strangely enough, he has been found right in Washington, living and working there, unnoticed.

It's a monotonous sort of job he has. Assigned to a beat, as it were, he has to cover that beat four times every year. There's little use trying to catch up or not much temptation to lag behind. Always there's a full beat ahead of him or behind him He just goes 'round and around, knowing he can never catch up with himself.

He hasn't admitted it, but he should be a little bit proud of his job Daily it puts him almost into contact with some of the big shots and little shots of Washington's official army If he weren't so busy gliding along on his beat he might stop to figure how many of the sisters and the cousins and the aunts of congressmen he has seen trying to justify their position on the federal payroll.

Perhaps, though, his supreme achievement is that he makes life brighter for members of the department of agriculture. Actually, he lets in light upon the mysterious workings of the master brains It happens he is plain Joseph Burke, one of five men employed to wash the building's 9,000 windows His beat is 1,800 windows, four times a year.

Platform Question Complicated

Democratic Strategists Believe Republicans Deprived Themselves of Issues in Drafting Planks.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1936, by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, June 18—Surveying the aftermath of the Cleveland convention, the political strategists of the new deal party primarily are rejoicing over what they believe was a tactical error on the part of the Republicans in tooling themselves of two paramount issues

The Democrats have argued, for example, under the charge that they had abandoned their 1932 platform The Republicans now declare that the carrying out of the 1936 platform of the Republican party is a matter of private honor and a binding contract. Yet it is contended on the other hand now that the Republican platform contains enough contradictions within itself to make it difficult for Gov. Landon, if elected President, to carry out some of the principal planks.

These contradictions will, of course, form the basis of the whole campaign of opposition on the part of the new deal to the new Republican approach Thus, the tariff plank has inconsistencies, the monetary plank is likely to cause Gov. Landon difficulties if he follows it literally or even attempts to follow his own amendment of it by telegram Likewise, there is vulnerable language in the farm plank.

All this is understandable to politicians, whether they be Republicans or Democrats For, in the minds of platform makers, there is never any real intention to let a platform plank interfere with the enactment of legislation that deviates from it The usual cry is that "circumstances have arisen which made a change necessary. Had the Republicans written and adopted an unequivocally worded platform, they might have introduced a novelty in political warfare So it appears doubtful, according to the view of many strategists here, whether the argument on platform-breaking is going to amount to very much after all, and, if this is the case, it is the Republican platform committee at Cleveland which brought that situation about.

The other issue on which the Democrats were apprehensive was the constitutional issue and the supreme court. The platform committee at Cleveland endeavored to make it clear that the supreme court was all right but that the New York state statute was not properly drawn or that the issue was not clearly presented and that eventually, by rehearing or otherwise, the constitutional question could be decided. But Gov. Landon, by his telegram to the convention, argued that, while he hoped the convention committee was right about it, nevertheless he wanted to be free to advocate a constitutional amendment.

In a sense, the Kansas governor was saying that the present framework of the Constitution is not adequate to take care of the minimum wage problem and that a change in the Constitution was necessary. The Democrats have all along contended that the Constitution was not adequate and that the supreme court was interpreting existing statutes too narrowly, thus forcing constitutional change

Now that the Republican nominee concedes the broad ground that the reforms needed cannot be accomplished within the Constitution—a position directly refuted by such eminent constitutional lawyers as Gen. Borah—the Democrats feel better about their own position They will argue that fundamentally the Republican attitude is the same as theirs.

It would not be surprising, on the other hand, if the Republicans veered away from the constitutional issue as such altogether and transferred the emphasis to the question of unconstitutional delegation of power by the legislative to the executive and the usurpation of legislative power by the executive through patronage and the use of public works awards In other words, the Republicans will probably take "dictatorship" as a better issue than constitutionalism, since the consolidation of executive and legislative power in the last three years has been going on irrespective of constitutional restraints

The new dealers insist that the Democratic platform to be adopted next week will fight shy of making any specific proposal to change the broad character of the Constitution, so as not to give the Republicans any issue on that point. Much, no doubt, will be said about it in keynote speeches, but aside from a possible suggestion about an amendment to take care of minimum wages the idea of cutting down state powers and giving the federal government authority over agriculture, labor and industry is not likely to be put forward in the party platform.

Behind the News

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight.

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 19—Credulous Congressman Smith of Virginia was amazed by the turn of the house against the anti-lobbying bill. Here, only a few weeks ago, the legislators overwhelmingly passed the bill penalizing lobbyists, and then, when the measure came up for final technical reapproval the other day, all of a sudden, they wanted to kill it. Congressman Smith frankly told the house he could not understand it.

Nobody told him, but, if he had looked in the morning papers, he would have seen an item on the results of the Maine primaries On the surface it seemed to say that the Townsendites and the Coughlinites won only a 33 1-3 per cent victory, that is, they nominated only two out of their six candidates.

Under the surface, however, the results hinted at a somewhat different story. For instance, a Townsendite won the Republican congressional nomination in the First District This is the district which reelected the conservative Republican Carroll Beedy, to congress so many times that he came to be known as the conservative Republican Gibraltar,

No outsider can fully appreciate the feeling of a statesman who sees the same Republicans who kept Beedy in office so long turning Townsend

Circumstances

It was further apparent to insiders that, in at least one of the other races apparently lost by the Coughlin-Townsendites, the result was close enough to justify a general alarm

Beyond that, in the Third District, Republican Representative Brewster (who was unopposed) has been very, very friendly with the Townsendites. They could legitimately claim his nomination as at least half a victory Thus, their victories stand at least, at two and one half of six in rock-ribbed, conservative old Maine

It was certainly enough to justify a change of heart and vote on the bill which would penalize the Townsend and Coughlin lobbyists as well as the rest.

Furthermore, just before the final vote, the A F of L lobby decided that it, too, would be affected by the bill, and urged its defeat

The combination of these two developments was enough to turn the retreat on the lobby bill into a rout

The Maine results also furnished the inspiration to both Coughlinites and Townsendites to talk about a combination third ticket in the presidential field.

Explanations

A combination of peculiar circumstances is supposed to have encouraged the unexpected wild-and-woolliness in Maine That state has not received much relief gravy, they say, despite Passamaquoddy The potato act failed Also both the Townsend and Coughlin movements are comparatively fresh there

In California, where the Townsend plan is old stuff, the primaries showed a trend in the opposite direction Fad-stunts in economics seem to catch on fast and let go just as swiftly (Witness. Share the wealth, and EPIC, now dead or dying)

The Townsend and Coughlin fadists went into New England only about six months ago Ordinarily, you would expect them to run their course toward self-effacement in about a year, but, by that time, the election may be over

Answers

There is a lot of inside talk around Washington that things are going to be different if and when President Roosevelt is reelected.

In congress you hear a substantial number of Democrats saying that, if they are reelected with the President, they are going to fight any extention of new deal policies Some of them even have an idea that they can form a bloc which will be effective in both the senate and the house. With the presidential election out of the way and Mr Roosevelt sure of only one more term, they think they can block many things

Similarly, downtown, there is talk inspired by almost the highest authority that there will be wholesale cabinet changes after election. Four names are specifically mentioned (Wallace, Ickes, Roper, Perkins) and others unspecifically (Hopkins, Tugwell, etc)

This seems to be good campaign talk. Congressmen, after election, would bear almost the same responsibility to the President as now. They would have to be reelected again in the middle of his second term. They would need patronage and consideration.

The cabinet gossip serves as a good answer to the charge of weakness in personnel.

Fifth avenue's conservative merchants who are in the majority are becoming increasingly concerned over the fly-by-night racketeers who take over empty stores and give them a bannered blatancy that suggests the deep Bowery. Mostly they are "linen stores," and never are the names of the owners displayed The customer has no recourse if dissatisfied Anyway, they seldom remain more than a few weeks Their windows display the high grade established article But they are only for the windows—the stuff on sale is shoddy.

And Park avenue had a duck fit over the possibility of a movie house in an arcade planned for the fabulous 50's Application for a license has been denied after round robins of protests were circulated among tenants in the surrounding buildings Park avenue believes one movie like the speck in the barrel of apples means quick decay It is already thinly flecked with vulgar trade

Being a small property owner on Park avenue I am for that reason alone opposed to commercial invasion But secretly I am for living over a store, next door to a movie or even a marathon dance hall. I never visit the lower East Side without a wince of envy for those placid, window leaning figures above the shops From the sidewalk there is generally visible a canary And on the window ledge a white poodle several weeks in bath arrears The battledoor and shuttlecock talk from window to window is always pitched in exciting tempo Tots dash about in screaming play until midnight. No community living seems more fun. More of give and take Everything external and child-like

And many of them have become big dress merchants.

AUTO ACCIDENT SUIT VERDICT IS REVERSED

Dr Hinklin Wins Order for New Trial of His Action Against Columbus Man

A decision favoring Dr William H Hinklin in his damage suit against Harold Beaver of Columbus was received here from the Third district court of appeals

The decision was handed down by the court yesterday and received today by Clerk of Courts Everett B Grigsby Dr Hinklin had sued Beaver for $5 500 for injuries allegedly suffered when their cars collided on state route No 23 four and one half miles south of Marion on June 12 1931 When the case came to trial in common pleas court here in March of last year Judge F LeRoy Allen of Union county who presided directed the jury to return a verdict in favor of Beaver The verdict was appealed to the higher court on error by Dr Hinklin's attorneys the law firm of Mouser Mouser & Wiant

The court of appeals has reversed Judge Allen and remanded the case for a new trial in common pleas court Beavers attorneys Carl W Lortz and Harvey Jones of Columbus and Paul D Smith of Marion have not indicated whether they will appeal to the supreme court

The opinion of the court of appeals was read by Presiding Judge William Klinger with Judges Paul M Crow and Charles A Guerney concurring

At the time of the accident the court's opinion says Dr Hinklin was driving south on route No 23 and attempted to make a left turn onto the Neidhart road glancing in the rear vision mirror and signaling his intention to turn first Evidence shows according to the Klinger opinion that the defendant Beaver was driving at a speed in excess of 50 miles an hour The opinion says Judge Allen erred in granting the defendant's motion for a directed verdict on the ground that the plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence and on the ground that the evidence did not show that Beaver was operating his car at the time of the accident

DISCLOSURE OF THIRD CANDIDATE AWAITED

Coughlin Says Name Will Be Revealed at 4 P M Today

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK June 19—The Rev Charles E Coughlin who made one of the two disclosures of a third party presidential candidate awaited the possible materialization today in public word from a candidate either in New York Boston or Washington

The Detroit radio priest who tentatively approved of the reported contents of a nine point form on which nine of three men was considering asking the plunge indicated the announcement—if a decision to that effect were finally made would come from one of those three cities

A decision of one of the mystery trio he said would be with the approval of the other two

The announcement would be made the priest said by 4 p m his own deadline — allowing Father Coughlin several hours to prepare a possible indorsement of the candidacy in a half hour radio address at 9 45 p m

Friends of Father Coughlin expressed belief the anonymous possibilities might include Rep William Lemke Republican of North Dakota co-sponsor of a defeated farm mortgage moratorium bill whose views on money and national finance are popular to those of the priest.

FINDS ALL-BRAN BETTER THAN PILLS, SALTS, AND OILS

This Natural Food Relieved His Constipation*

We quote from his letter: "... So I decided to make a fair trial (of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN), with the result that I felt much improved. I have quit all laxatives since 1929.

"For 34 years, I had to take pills, salts, oils, teas, or other fluids, which did more harm than good. ALL-BRAN now is our breakfast cereal for the whole family."—Mr. Martin Wroblowski, 201 Church Street, Highland Park, Mich.

Meals low in "bulk" often lead to constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides generous "bulk" in effective form. This "bulk" absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. How much better to use this natural food in place of patent medicines.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. It is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

BAN PEDDLING IN MT. GILEAD

Council Passes Ordinance Barring Itinerant Salesmen.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, June 19—Peddling from house to house in Mt. Gilead will be a misdemeanor after Monday, June 29, and anyone engaging in the practice will be subject to a fine of from $5 to $50 for each offense.

Council passed the ordinance as an emergency measure making it effective 10 days from the date of passage. For several years attempts have been made here to regulate peddling by means of licenses but it was found to be unsatisfactory because state laws license certain persons to sell without regard to local license provisions.

The ordinance which is designed to practically eliminate all house to house peddling is similar in form to one passed in a Wyoming city a few months ago. It was sustained in test cases in the state and federal courts there and since it relies for its enforcement and authority on the police powers of the city or village it does not conflict with state laws in regard to licensing.

Complaints about the numerous peddlers constituting a nuisance have been made on several occasions here recently. In addition to this council was motivated by a desire to protect so far as is legally possible the local market for local merchants.

Several other Ohio towns and cities have recently adopted ordinances which declare peddling to be a nuisance and a misdemeanor subject to fine.

BUCYRUS DAMAGE ACTION APPEALED

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, June 19—Pursuant to a ruling made by Judge C. U. Ahl to dismiss the $50,000 damage suit of Harry A. Paxton against the Vollrath heirs, the Standard Oil company and eight interested insurance companies, appeal was made in the district court of appeals by J. D. Sears, attorney for Paxton Thursday.

The suit is the outgrowth of the collapse of the Opera house building in a high wind, April 8, this year, when fire-weakened walls fell causing considerable damage to the Paxton garage and residence.

The case still stands against the Standard Oil Co. and the interested insurance companies.

CAPTURED VESSEL BELIEVED RUNAWAY

British Ship Forcibly Captures Trawler Thought To Be "Girl Pat."

By The Associated Press

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, June 19—The government S. S. Pomeroon today forcibly captured a vessel believed to be the runaway British trawler Girl Pat.

The vessel taken had been hovering outside the three-mile limit for several days.

Excitement ran high on shore, for officials said the mysterious boat's crew had threatened to fire on a police boat off the Demerara river mouth.

A conference called by Gov. Sir Geoffrey Northcote last night decided to ask London for instructions, and it was understood the capture was in according with London's reply.

Police officials reported the craft answered descriptions of the Girl Pat whose crew ran away with her from Grimsby, Eng., early in April. Presumably on a search for the pirate treasure.

The trawler's owner filed warrantry charges against the crew.

SHIP RACES ASHORE WITH HOLE IN SIDE

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, June 19—The excursion steamer Tashmoo, with water cascading through a gaping hole in her side, won a race with death early today while 1,400 passengers danced to the music of a swing band and members of the engine room "black gang" stoked boiler fires with water swirling around them waist deep.

The 308-foot vessel struck a rock half a mile from the main ship channel in the lower Detroit river on the return trip of a "moonlight cruise." Ten minutes later the ship reached Amherstburg, Ont., and began to sink in 18 feet of water at the dock.

LANDON GIVES CLUE TO CAMPAIGN THEME

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 19 — A statement by Gov. Alf M. Landon that "forces alien to our American form of government seek to destroy our country" gave a possible indication today of one campaign argument to be used by the Landon forces.

Observers here noted that, in a telegram congratulating Mrs. Eleanor Gridley, Chicago school teacher on her ninetieth birthday, the Republican presidential nominee said:

"In this greatest crisis since the Civil war, when forces alien to our American form of government seek to destroy our country, I am happy for the opportunity to acknowledge through you our debt to the men and women teachers who today are unselfishly striving to keep alive the spirit of real Americanism among our children."

The future attitude of Senator Borah of Idaho toward the Republican ticket was a subject of renewed speculation in view of a letter he sent to R. P. Parry, Republican state chairman of Idaho.

Borah said he was willing to seek the senatorial nomination but he reserved the right to "exercise full freedom of views and of discussion" on national issues candidates.

New Items Add Variety To Produce Market Here

Produce markets took on a more varied appearance today, with the arrival of a number of new items of fruits and vegetables.

At the same time, dealers seemed apprehensive over the summer's supply of homegrown foodstuffs unless J p Petroni be more a little more active. Lack of rain has shortened the home grown asparagus season which is expected to draw to a close Sunday, and as one dealer said, the rest of the homegrown stuff needs a lot of rain quick.

Fresh Calimyrna figs, rather a novelty on local markets have just made their appearance. These figs, when ripe are plum colored and look something like an elongated plum, have a delicious flavor and sell at three for 10 cents.

The first freestone peaches, from Georgia, have just come on the stands, bringing around 10 cents a pound. Georgia white peaches, selling at two pounds for 15 cents, have been on the markets lately.

Homegrown celery hearts put in their appearance today, moving well at 10 cents a bunch.

Huckleberries which came on the market last week, are now arriving in larger quantities, some from California and some from Michigan. They are selling at 25 cents a quart.

Seedless Arizona Valencia oranges also are among the newcomers. Described as "sweet as sugar" they are regarded as quite unique and are bringing around 40c. We note a dozen for medium-sized ones. Valencia oranges from California were a new arrival here last week.

DETOURS LISTED ON HIGHWAY BULLETIN

Improvement Projects Block Roads in Counties Near Marion.

Road detours in the vicinity of Marion are listed on the state highway department's bulletin on road conditions for the period June 19 to June 26.

Route 95, the Marysville-Kenton road, is blocked off north from Marysville for three miles because of a bridge project. A temporary detour, taking two and one-half miles extra distance has been provided.

A bridge project in Morrow county has closed route 42, the Marion-Mansfield road, for several miles southwest of Johnsville. The only detour is south of Kenton on route 68, caused by a paving project starting at the Hardin-Logan county line and extending southward for about two miles.

Wife and Four Children in Hospital After Ancient Car Hits Ditch..

By The Associated Press

COVINGTON, Ky., June 19—Robert Woodworth, 43, of Lima, war veteran, still was without steady work today; his wife and four of his eight children were in a hospital and the 12-year-old car he purchased with $55 of his bonus money lay wrecked at the foot of an embankment south of here.

Two of the five in the hospital have possibly serious hurts.

Leaving Lima yesterday, Woodworth said he was taking his family to Florida, where relatives of his wife reside. Mrs. Woodworth believed, he told police, that they might assist him in finding steady employment. The car left the road near Williamstown, 30 miles south.

Woodworth was slightly injured but Mrs. Woodworth suffered a possible shoulder fracture; their son, John, 16, pelvic injuries, while Robert, 10; Ralph, 2, and Eleanor, 8, received assorted contusions and shock, the hospital reported.

George, 8, and his sisters, Virginia, 15, Margie, 12, and Lucy, 7, were not injured.

Woodworth told police he had been without steady work for four years "but had managed not to take any of Mr. Roosevelt's dole."

He received $400 bonus, he said, and purchased the automobile principally as a means of locating a job.

As for the car, "anyone who'll haul it over the bank can have it," the Ohioan declared, adding his family would "go to Florida by train" as soon as they are able.

... acquired a taste for ...nt to great lengths to ... the housewives had put ... cool. Nancy, the wife ...evens, always hid the butter in the woods and the wily redskins had no trouble in discovering the hiding place. Tom Lyon and his band would search at night, and when they had found the yellow roll of butter would shout a signal to indicate to their fellow-searchers that the hunt was ended.

Threats Employed

History records that sometimes when the Indians found Mrs. Stevens alone in her cabin, they would brandish knives in a threatening way to make her tell where the precious butter was hidden.

Four Indians called one day on a Mrs. Wait and asked for her husband. Fearing they might kill him she directed them away from the spot where he was working. They didn't find him and apparently not wishing to return to camp without causing the white people some discomfiture, they went to a neighboring cabin and forced the wife to comb their hair and feed them with a spoon. Satisfied with the ministrations they left without making further trouble.

Once this same women, returning from a spring house, found a huge warrior in full feathers and paint, but no sign of the small child she had left alone at the cabin. She was panic stricken until she saw the child's head come up from under a bench where he had hidden himself when he saw the Indian brave approaching.

Protects Her Home

Once this same woman, returning was the attempted burning of the Stevens home while Mr. Stevens was in Mt. Vernon. Tom Lyon and his band attempted unsuccessfully to force the door of the cabin and not to be thwarted, threw firebrands on the roof. Mrs. Stevens, who had gone upstairs with her baby and a gun when she saw the Indians coming, saw that different measures would be required. She slipped downstairs quietly and then ran back up, calling her husband's name. Putting on a pair of heavy boots she came clumping down the stairs. She repeated the ruse, next time calling the name of her husband's father, a stern old man feared by the Indians, and Tom Lyon and his band, thinking the old man was inside, took to their heels into the woods.

For Saturday, June 20

ACCORDING To the auguries based on the prevailing planetary configurations, this day and its affairs may be much as individual effort and inclination make them.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which much depends on individual initiative and diligence. There is a predisposition toward intrigue and secret or singular activities, with the emotional nature spurred to peculiar adventures.

A child born on this day may have a very sensitive and emotional nature, with subtle or secretive urges, although fond of society, domestic and romantic life. It will lean to the novel, curious and visionary.

Notable nativity: Helen Gould, philanthropist.

LEAGUE'S GIFT HELPS FUND FOR DOUGHBOY

met at the home of Mrs F. C. Higgins and [illegible] at 364 Delaware avenue to receive instructions in [illegible] from Mrs W. F. Gorham. They met once a week and made [illegible] army sweaters, [illegible] articles are [illegible] of gray and khaki yarns. Any wool [illegible] to be used in the [illegible] are Mrs J. P. Hume was elected president and Mrs Marion Dumble secretary treasurer. Every member [illegible].

The money to buy yarn came from a fund built up by silver [illegible] made at each meeting. The women met once a week and were busy from 10 in the morning until late afternoon, knitting all the time except for the luncheon hour and when they went home they took with them yarn to be knit during the week.

How the group, never before known as the Marion County navy league, is a mystery to the women as they recall today none of the articles made by them ever went to the boys in navy service.

On Jan. 7 1919 it was agreed that the league's period of usefulness was ended and the finished articles which were on hand were given to the Marion County chapter of Red Cross for distribution. The last meeting prior to the one held this week was on March 26 1920 when Mrs Hughs was elected secretary treasurer to succeed Mrs Dumble.

Bought Legion Range

The league then had a bank balance of $104.31 which the members voted to leave untouched until some worthy patriotic cause needed assistance.

The first opportunity to put the money to use came 10 years later on Jan. 21 1930 when $90 was taken from the bank by [illegible] league [illegible] the [illegible] of the Dunbar-Reed-McGraw-Fry No. 18 American Legion Mrs J. L. Hunter of the league and Chris Tuff [illegible] and Legion [illegible] advised purchase of the range.

No publicity was given the purchase and [illegible] of the range and it is doubtful that many Legionnaires know [illegible] they should be stated [illegible] one of the first [illegible] in any meeting hall [illegible].

Interest had accumulated until there remained a balance of $[illegible] after $160 had been withdrawn. Nothing more was done with the money until one week when a meeting of the former league members was held at the home of Mrs Hoover, 391 South Main street and it was decided that since the first league members were D. A. P. women and that it was specified that the money be used for a patriotic purpose the remaining money should be given to the Captain William Hendricks chapter of the Doughboy fund.

Yesterday Members Forgot League

When it was decided to meet this week at Mrs Hoover's many of the leagues first members had almost forgotten the existance of the league and the bank account.

As far as the members now living recall the original league members were Mrs S. B. Gorham, Mrs W. J. Fiez, Mrs Charles Gompf, Mrs M. A. Turney, Mrs Earl Smith, Mrs Grant Mouser Sr., Mr Dana Weeks, Mrs Clifford M. Howser, Mrs Walter S. Guthrie, Mrs Mary Hughs Garey, Mrs Eugenia Dickson, Mrs J. A. McMurray, Mrs I. L. Dumble, Mrs C. V. Leffler, Mrs J. T. Matthews, Mrs George Frank, Mrs Louise Frank Powland, Mrs J. A. Schroeter, Mrs Day Clifton, Mrs J. L. Hoover, Mrs Frank Lust, Mrs L. L. Streck, Mrs J. F. Smith, Mrs F. C. Hughs, Mrs J. F. Phillips, Mrs Henry B. Hane, Misses Maude and Ruth Gorham, Miss Clara Diebold, Miss Estella Smith, Miss Harriet Christian, Miss Emma Thompson and Miss Alice Hane and the late Mrs W. S. Harvey, Mrs Mary Evans, Mrs Elsie Ballantine Wilson, Mrs Eunice Covert and Mrs J. B. Hume.

"No money I suppose"

"Plenty from all accounts but Arthur Burdett was a miser"

"That's interesting A real genuine miser?"

"Pretty genuine sir He had his two dogs destroyed a few years back because he wouldn't go on paying the licenses and he was always the last man in the village to pay his taxes though they daren't hardly summons him because he was a J P though he never sat on the bench."

"Was he popular?"

"Very much the reverse sir Very few people had a good word for him He never spent a penny more than he could help didn't drink or smoke and never known to give anything away in his life

"Why are we worrying about the death of this unsavory human" the Inspector asked

James White laughed "Well sir I don't know about you" he answered "I'm concerned in it because it's my duty and that's all"

Kingsley Hylton signed "A miser of the old school loved by none disliked by all is murdered Who did it? Is that the problem?"

"That's about it sir"

"Was Burdett married?"

"No"

"Nobody else in the house but this one man servant?"

"Andrew Lumsdale"

"What sort is Mr Andrew Lumsdale?"

"Rum sort of chap sir Very re... tom of him About forty I should say and very powerful by the look of him Has a foreigner in these parts comes from Cheshire or some such place and I don't think people here have taken too kindly to him"

"Um Did Burdett have any relatives round about?"

"The only one I've ever heard of's a young Mr Shipley he would be a sort of nephew well he is the son of the dead man's half brother"

"What about Mr Shipley?"

"A bit of a wild young chap sir In and out of the pubs a good deal and so forth but no real harm in him that I know of"

"Was he friendly with old Burdett?"

"Very seldom went near him as far as I know"

"What sort of terms were they on? Did you ever hear Shipley talking about him?"

"Yes sir once in the Bar of the Hoops."

"I found the body of the dead man.

"What did he say?"

"As near as I can remember he said that of all the farthing fumbling old fools he'd ever known his Uncle was the worst"

* * *

"Bad to worse Did Burdett keep any money in the house with him" Was he a real genuine miser who sat up at night letting the yellow gold trickle through his fingers?"

"I couldn't say about what he did at night Inspector nor for that matter about the amount of money he kept with him People used to say there was thousands of pounds there but somehow I doubt it."

"Was any stolen?"

"We don't know sir There was a small wall safe open in the room where he was murdered and there was a considerable sum of money in there

"How much"

"Just over three hundred pounds"

"Notes?"

"All sorts sir Gold silver and notes"

So whoever did the murder left that behind anyway"

Of course he might have taken some and left some as a blind"

"True Did you find anything at all to give you any sort of clue?"

Well sir to be quite candid I didn't Not a thing Maybe I'm slow witted and in any case of course I'm not used to this sort of thing When I got there I didn't find a thing—as far as I can see it might have been anyone Of course there may be some finger-prints—

"Leave fingerprints for fiction" Hylton urged look for motive The heart gives more people away than the hand White believe me Who gets anything out of it" That's the unfailing fingerprint People very seldom murder with out motive Quite so sir"

Well come on let's go and view the corpse in its natural surroundings shall we?

"Have you a car sir?

"No Two long legs Encase the feet in regulation foot gear—by the way are you married?"

Sergeant White stared at his somewhat disconcerting visitor

"Yes I'm married sir" he answered slowly

Your wife? Hylton picked up a photograph from a side table "That's my wife

Hylton studied a picture that might have taken and held any man's eye—that of a finely made woman clad in the most abbreviated of bathing costumes poised on a rock a streaming mass of hair blown away from her by the wind

A fine looking woman if I may say so he said

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Gives Brixton Plan for Approaching Ronald.

"I DON'T think I understand" Samuel Brixton commented as I told him that Mrs. Brixton's inability to be a Derby Day chaperon because of her recent illness made it complete for my story to Ronald

You will shortly I find him I am going to tell Ronald that I drove down to Whitney Hall to consult with Marion about an acceptable and suitable chaperon for the Derby Day festivities I shall say that Carolyn was temporarily absent when we arrived and that when Marion found out my errand she arranged matters so that Carolyn did not see us or know we were there

I shall say that Marion did this in order to keep from Carolyn as long as possible the sad news that there were to be no Derby Day festivities I shall make it very clear that Marion would have volunteered no information on the subject but that when I asked her about the chaperon she told me that she was not going to New Haven and that Ronald had said he would have to call off the date because his father was in financial difficulties

"Don't you see" I went on that without involving Marion any further I can tell Ronald we were so worried over the news that we came straight to you to find out what was wrong

"Then I shall begin to imitate Saphira" I said I shall tell him that you told us something unexpected had turned up which had staved off for a while and might eventually pull you through But you were so shattered nervously by the long strain and the sudden reaction that you were nervous about driving up and we offered to drive to New Haven with you Probably Ronald can arrange to drive you home If not we will continue on with you"

Oh Ron can take that much time his stepfather said He's often done it.

Then that part of it is all right

I think that ought to turn the trick he said thoughtfully but I shall feel an absolute idiot giving all those prospects to the boy knowing all the while that he is celebrating on your money—something which would kill him if he dreamed of it—he is so proud you know

Indeed I did know I told myself and suddenly there came to me the eerie sensation of something outside mortal ken near me of wraith like fingers beckoning me over the bridge of Dicky's possible displeasure which I had been hesitant to cross and of a long silent voice murmuring Remember! You promised me Do not fail me!

OSCAR GAST Probate Judge

Instinctively I slowed down the car—for the memories which were pressing upon me as paralyzed my powers of speech and action that for the moment I did not dare to drive the car farther

Dont be alarmed I said to Samuel Brixton who had uttered a horse exclamation at my action and who I guessed must have seen something disquieting in my face "I am simply humoring my eyes a bit Every so often when I am driving they become tired and for a minute or two I feel sleepy

So as hastily speech trembled on my lips—I do not wish you to drive I am perfectly all right If I can rest my eyes for just a minute or two and relax I shall be perfectly all right again"

I turned off the ignition switch and put my head against the side of the car with an air of finality closing my eyes as I did so Nothing so indicated the change in Samuel Brixton as his quiet acquiescence in my decision The man he had been before his financial downfall would have blustered and protested and have made it absolutely impossible for me to accomplish my purpose that of pulling myself together and either banishing the ghastly memories which were besetting me or trying with all that was in me to obey the urgent message they were bringing me

For as clearly as I ever had heard him speak in life the voice of Robert Savarin was sounding in my ears

Tigers' Pennant Hopes Fade; Yanks Beat Clevela

DETROIT, ALREADY AT LOW EBB, FACES RED SOX, NEW YORKERS

Lou Gehrig Moves Into Lead of Big League Batting Parade

By The Associated Press

They're tuning up the swan song of the Tiger reign in the big league baseball jungle.

The experts are pretty much agreed now that even if Ma and Pa Mickey Cochrane's glands and Hank Greenberg's wrist are in working order and the mightiest kind of pulach can save either the American league pennant or the World's title for the badly battered Detroit clan.

The Tigers are at a low ebb for the year. They've just lost their sixth straight start and with the Yankees pounding power and the Red Sox million dollar lineup hitting their stride as July 4 approaches it seems a miracle is necessary to bring the Detroits in.

The Washington Senators made it three straight over Detroit yesterday with a 12-4 win to put the Tigers 11 games off the pace of the New York Yankees. And with a three game series with the New Yorkers and another with the Red Sox in the immediate offing the outlook is anything but rosy.

The Yankees are in Detroit starting today with three fresh wins over the Cleveland Indians in their bags. The last was chalked up yesterday by a 6-5 count as slugger Lou Gehrig hammered a homer, two doubles and a single to go to the lead of the big-league batting parade with a .390 average.

The Yanks victory boosted their league lead to 4½ games over the Red Sox who were handed a 1-0 trouncing by Johnny Whitehead's three hit hurling for the Chicago White Sox. These results left the Senators in third place but sank the Tigers to just one percentage point above the fifth place dead lock between the Indians and White Sox. The St. Louis Browns drew near to their exit from the league cellar by outclubbing the Athletics 7-2.

Meanwhile the St. Louis Cardinals lead in the National league was put on the fire. The Boston Bees who have had their stingers working this week made it three out of four over the Cards with a 4-0 shutout.

With the second place Chicago Cubs rained out in Philadelphia the Cards edge was sliced to a mere game and a half. Wet weather also caught up with the Pirates in Brooklyn and the Reds in New York.

Await Gong in Yankee Stadium

Delay Does Little To Change Odds or Boost Sales of Tickets

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK June 19—Washed out in more ways than one what's left of the heavyweight title argument between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling is due to be settled tonight in the Yankee Stadium.

Weather permitting and it's even money the skies will be clear this evening the 22 year-old American Negro will toe off on the German veteran a few minutes after 9 p m (EST). If you believe all you have been reading about the affair it will be all over with a drive and a pitch.

First Delay in Years

The one-day postponement first in years for a major heavyweight match failed either to rally any backing for the Germans chances already so minimized as to be scarcely discernible or prompt a belated rush for the lonesome ticket-sellers.

The only mob scene so far connected with the enterprise occurred yesterday at the old Hippodrome on Sixth avenue where the police scored a decision over the working press in connection with the weighing in. The experts didn't exactly take it on the chin but they were making no gains in the clinches before finally getting the momentous information that Louis scaled 198 pounds Schmeling 192 and that both fighters were in absolutely perfect fighting condition.

Louis who figures to dominate the proceedings inside the ring also was the life of the postponement party. The young Negro took delight in the formal examination grinned at Schmeling when the German put in a belated appearance and joshed Promoter Mike Jacobs.

Would 'Fight In Rain"

Quighter stayed home today commented the chocolate soldier I like to play golf in the rain and you can see plain for yourself there's ain't gonna be no fight. It might be fun to fight in the rain anyway. How about it Uncle Mike? Let's have it anyway. Or does you care about folks coming?

Uncle Mike apparently did care. He hustled around giving orders and taking steps to conduct an extra day's drive for cash customers.

The payoff probably will be on a $600,000 gate. This will mean somewhat less than $200,000 for each of the gladiators. In figuristic parlance the bout is off the nut but by no such margin as all concerned had hoped including the income tax collectors.

Along Broadway it's even money Schmeling doesn't survive the fifth round with few takers for this or any other wagering proposition offered by the bookmakers.

Pressure of 10,000 pounds can be exerted with a new ball and nut cutter that weighs only two pounds.

MARSHALL, ALI BABA TO CLASH JUNE 29 FOR WRESTLE TITLE

Mat Tilt To Be Staged in Red Bird Stadium at Columbus

Special to The Star

COLUMBUS O June 19—The world's heavyweight champion will match Everet Marshall blond champion from La Junta Colo and Ali Baba, the Turk in Red Bird stadium at Columbus on the night of June 29.

Both Marshall and Ali Baba are recognized as champion Marshall is recognized by the Midwest Wrestling association and the Colorado and Kentucky state commissions. Ali Baba is recognized widely elsewhere.

When they meet here June 29 the match will determine for the first time since Frank Gotch held sway an undisputed unquestioned heavyweight champion of the world according to the promoters.

Both men rose to prominence spectacularly. Marshall won his title in an open competition tournament in Denver Colo in June 1935 from a field of the world's greatest matmen. Ali Baba startled the world by winning his title from Dick Shikat in Detroit on April 24 after Shikat had broken the trust by pinning Danno O'Mahoney in New York March 2. Ali Baba repeated over Shikat in New York on May 5 1936.

Articles for the world's championship match in Red Bird stadium June 29 call for one fall and will be wrestled under Midwest Wrestling association rules.

Red Birds Defeat Indiana and Advance to Secon

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO June 19—The standings which keep the American association clubs and averages will be settled to a much-earned rest when the curtain falls on the 1936 season.

The rapidity with which first division teams have scrambled to the second and the second division clubs have soared to the top of the circuit's standings has made this campaign one of the best in many years.

St Paul started winning early piling up 16 wins to shoot to the circuit lead. Then the Saints tailspinned and now are in fourth place. Minneapolis's scoring consistently in the first division ranks in a some rough competition from second division clubs and dropped in the standings.

Monday Mat Card To Pit Chaney vs. George Sauer And Red Berry vs. Terror

Promoters Arrange for One Match in Open Air Arena To Be Decided When One of Contestants Concede the Fall.

Lon Chaney [illegible] George Sauer, and Wild [illegible] will be pitted against [illegible] Terror in the two 90- [illegible] feature bouts. Two weeks [illegible] Sauer won over Chaney but [illegible] was some dispute over the [illegible] illegal tactics in putting [illegible] winning toe-hold as the [illegible] ordered the wrestlers to break. Last week Chaney came out ahead in a feature bout with Sauer, but the latter vigorously protested the Referee Temple was incor- [illegible] in calling the final and decid- [illegible] fall.

Sauer who hails from Lincoln, Neb., requested that if he were permitted to return to the Marion ring, he would like to meet the Indianapolis grappler in a scrap which would decide the protested matches. The Nebraskan got his request and will have to either produce the goods or lose what little prestige he can claim among fans here. He fell into disfavor here because of his rope walking activity, and usually faces a hostile crowd when he enters the ring.

The colorful Wild Red Berry of Pittsburg, Kan., who according to his own opinion is, "built like a champion and really is the uncrowned champ of the world," will face one of toughest rivals when he meets the Masked Terror. Wild Red likes nothing better than a tough opponent and the Terror will be out to avenge a previous defeat here at the hands of the Kansan. Berry mauled the Masked mad man into submission with a series of hard body slams and won an all-decisive one-fall when the two opposed each other here several weeks ago.

The style of scrapping which the Masked Terror will follow is about as easy to predict as it is to discover his identity, which has been kept a close secret during his appearances here. Capable of wrestling with the best of opponents, the disguised matter can usually be expected to inaugurate the rough stuff. With an exceptionally strong left arm, the Terror seemingly likes to use it in putting the pressure on chin and headlocks, but he utilizes the same arm in throwing punches to mow down an opponent.

Stalking about the ring with the air of a beast awaiting the kill, the Terror presents a grotesque figure in his togs which cover him from head to foot except for his arms and the four small openings in the red mask. His abilities are well-known to fans here and the outcome of his battle with Berry is a matter of conjecture. In addition to the two feature bouts a 20-min-preliminary will complete the program, which is to begin at 8:30 o'clock in the outdoor arena on Uneapher avenue.

HUBER WINS SIXTH STRAIGHT CONTEST; PROSPECT SECOND

Steam Shovel Loses Chance To Tie for Second Place by Losing to Fairfield.

Huber's entry in the Commercial league added the sixth game to its consecutive winning streak by slanking the Marion Merchants 3 to 0, last night. Prospect moved up as the outstanding contender to unseat the league-leading Huber outfit when it moved into undisputed second place by virtue of a 10 to 5 victory over Excavator. The Marion Steam Shovel team was defeated, 3 to 1, at the hands of Fairfield. Failure of the Marion Steam Shovel squad to come through in its battle with Fairfield dropped the defeated team out of a possible second place tie with Prospect, both teams previously having an identical average. In the fourth Commercial loop contest, the Keytown Campers put on a five-run scoring rally to win over the Lawrence Markets, 5 to 2.

Games scheduled tonight will feature the opening encounters of the six-team intermediate league in twilight contests at 6.15 o'clock and an All Star game at Lincoln park. The game under the floodlights, to begin at 5:30 o'clock, will match the Elks and K. of P. teams. It will be the latter squad's first opportunity to go into action under the lights, its previous contest being postponed.

Fairfield stopped the Marion Steam Shovel team through the pitching ability of Gamble, who kept the defeated squad's six hits well scattered. The winning team collected the same number of hits and managed to tally one run in each the second, third and final innings. Gamble was supported by errorless fielding.

The Marion Merchants failed to score a single run on three hits, while the top-notch Huber team shoved in the winning three-run margin on six safe bingles. Schwaderer, victorious hurler, turned in a neat mound performance to keep his team at the top of the league standings.

With heavy scoring in the opening innings, Prospect took over an eight-run lead at the start of the third frame, and its supremacy was never questioned as it won, 10 to 5, over the Excavator aggregation. Gilmore, Excavator moundsman, permitted the winning team nine hits, but fielding errors of his teammates proved costly.

The scores by innings follow:

Braddock Not Puffed by Ring Title He Captured a Year Ago

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 19—He's been heavyweight champion of the world for one year and he's still the same old Jimmy Braddock.

You couldn't say that about many guys surely.

But the affable, well-fed, well-dressed Irishman who wrings your hand today otherwise is the same under-nourished, worried and discouraged fellow who went into the ring with Max Baer one year ago so that he could pay the milk bill.

Forget about your fairy tales. The story of James J. Braddock has 'em all beat a mile.

Two years ago, mind you, he was on the relief rolls. He worked as a laborer on the Hoboken docks, when he could.

They wanted a soft touch for Corn Griffin. Braddock went into the ring on one day's notice. Hungry and weak, he was floored in the first round. But he came back to flatten Griffin, then a real heavyweight prospect.

Braddock got $250 for that.

Then they wanted a sacrifice for John Henry Lewis, new light heavyweight champion. Braddock took it and beat Lewis. They tossed him $750, as if they were doing him a favor, which they were.

Then it was decided Art Lasky needed building up. Braddock's smart little manager, Joe Gould sure his man was on the upgrade again, asked for the fight. Everyone laughed. Gould guaranteed Lasky $5,000 and took a gamble.

Braddock cooked Lasky's goose and collected around $5,000 himself—the first good money he had made since he was one of the leading light heavies 10 years ago.

The first thing he did was repay the New Jersey Relief society the $350 he had been advanced while he was in financial distress.

Baer and the title came next. Never has so much dope been spilled as the Cinderella man overturned in the big bowl in Long Island.

Now's he's the champ, but he's the same old Jimmy Braddock. His popularity has increased by leaps and bounds. Plenty of steaks have increased the size of his collar and the size of his belt, but he still wears the same size hats.

His family still lives in the modest little New Jersey apartment it occupied during the days when the milk man was the No. 1 problem. The Braddocks have moved from the back of the house to the front—that's all.

His big chance will come if and when he meets Joe Louis this fall. Then he is assured the champion's share of what probably will be a million dollar gate.

Oil and Politics

The student of politics had learned the practice of politics in a dynamic experience. He had formed new attachments and friendships. Now both the regular and Bull Moose factions welcomed a truce while they waited on the turn of events to shape future policy.

Fortune favored the fledging producer by bringing in some moderately profitable wells. He was happy, living at home with his parents. One hears frequent references to him as a "home man." He would rise at dawn, drive long distances about the oil fields and then back to sleep in his own bed, frequently not arriving until midnight.

In 1914 he suffered the hard blow of the death of his devout mother, who had been his counselor no less than his father. She had been very interested in the affairs of her church, which now has an organ, given by her husband and son and dedicated to her memory.

A year after her death Alf brought his bride, Miss Margaret Fleming, whom he had known since his boyhood, from the old oil country of northwestern Pennsylvania to the new oil country of southeastern Kansas. Another hard blow came with her death, soon after the birth of a daughter, Margaret Anne, shortly before our entry into the World war.

With a motherless child to care for when he had just turned thirty, Landon was down in the fourth class of the draft. He enlisted in the Chemical Warfare Service and gained a lieutenant's commission. The Armistice came before he received orders for France.

As party wounds healed and Theodore Roosevelt returned to the regular fold, Landon's prestige from the Bull Moose campaign and his capacity for bringing men together made him the most available local leader in party reorganization.

In 1922 he pinch-hit for six weeks as private secretary to Henry Allen, who was Governor, 1919-23, and mentioned for the Presidency. It was understood with Allen that his service as secretary was to be only temporary. Landon did not want to give up his business, and he did not think that a man should hold a salaried office close to the Governor and run his business at the same time.

County committeeman for his party was another matter. For this he received no pay. It was a party and not an official position. In the oil regions friends were now saying that Alf just could not keep out of politics. They sometimes told him that there was nothing in it except abuse and disappointment. But he replied that what you get out of it was what you put into it.

"Yes," he would say, "I guess I'm becoming a regular plug politician."

Now a plug is not race horse, a high-stepping carriage horse, a hunter or a polo pony, but a steady, everyday work horse, plugging along from dawn to dark. His job is right there with all four feet on the earth, not doing any circus stunts or looking for ribbons at the horse show.

So Alf kept plugging along in politics as a side issue and in the oil business as a main issue. Gradually he accumulated what is called a "comfortable fortune" in Kansas. I have heard it estimated from a quarter to a half million dollars, never at a million. He bought a farm. No one who has a little money really qualifies as a Kansan until he owns a farm. It gives him a sense of "belonging," of full state citizenship, of independence, even if he does not make the farm pay.

Oil men say that he would not touch a lease that appeared in any way shady; that he never bought a law-suit; and that he might have made a great deal more money if he had kept out of politics and also taken some interest in stock manipulation. He never bought or sold stocks. He liked the suspense as the drill sunk the hole deeper; he liked the triumph of bringing in a well. He could be "that tight" at times and again very generous. Yet I heard no one say he was really mean about money or he liked money for money's sake. He would not give for the sake of appearing generous, but if it were a case of helping a man of self-reliant nature who had had bad luck or whom age and bad luck were upon his back at the same time, "Alf would dig into his jeans without making any talk about it." This is line with his boyhood venture in the chicken business when he insisted upon ruling prices and prompt payment. In his unprofessional ledger a dozen eggs were written off as a gift to a poor woman.

He wanted anyone he aided to get his dollar's worth and be worthy of it as he himself wanted a dollar's worth for himself or his employes in his business. He was a "equine shooter." He had "horse sense." And everybody in Kansas, including the men in the garages, knows the meaning of "horse sense." The plug is supposed to have more of it than the high stepper.

He continued to plug in politics as well as business. As the normal reward of his political experience, he was chosen chairman of the state executive committee of his party in 1928. It looked like a soft job in the boom year of Hoover's overwhelming electoral victory. But Kansas was not sharing the prosperity of the industrial centers; nor were the other farm states. All had been suffering depression; their misfortune had already become a national problem under Coolidge.

However, the election of a Republican governor of Kansas was still assured, the only question being the size of the majority. With rare exception, the real political battle has ever been for the Republican nomination for the governorship, not for the Republican nominee's election. Normally Clyde M. Reed, who was elected in 1928, would have been renominated to succeed himself in 1930. That is a Kansas tradition akin to the nomination of a President of the United States for a second term. The national tradition against a third term also holds in Kansas.

But Reed, a brilliant man, had become unpopular with his own party as well as with the people. He offended the Republican conservatives, middle-of-the-roaders, progressives and radicals. Apparently both his manner and method quite lacked the "we" followship, and this time Landon failed as an auxiliary to soften irritation against Reed even when Landon tried to divert it against himself.

Reed lost the nomination to his rival Haucke in the state primary. Nowhere was Reed more unpopular than in Independence, where the opposition was so aggressive in the local primary that Landon lost his own place as precinct committeeman by a narrow margin, which meant, under the party law, that he was out of the state chairmanship.

By 1930 the nation-wide depression had added its weight to the farm states' burdens. The once lonely Kansas Democrats were finding that they had Republicans for company out of the common misery against candidate Haucke.

The contest of 1930 became a three-cornered one. Once more the Kansas of "sockless Jerry Simpson" of the eighteen-nineties was the center of national attention as the land of the wild, when as a matter of fact, I have found the average Kansas to be a quiet, sensible person.

The radio had become the medium for the magic words of "goat gland doctor" Brinkley who would cure all industrial ills with medicines which are pleasant to take. If voters who had fallen under the spell of his promises and the hypnotism of his bedside manner had not had to write his name on the ticket correctly many political experts thought that he would have had a plurality. Harry H. Woodring, a banker, the Democratic candidate, was elected.

No sooner had the election of 1930 been decided than Landon engaged in another battle for a cause which recalled that of the Bull Moose days in its elemental forces. This was known as "the stripper oil well fight." The issue was much the same in principle as that when high stumpage by lumbermen, with vast virgin forests at their disposal, left fine lumber waste instead of cutting the trees close to the ground.

By 1930 the new oil fields with their great gushers, were flooding the market at the time of the falling prices of the first year of the depression. There were 350,000 stripper wells, 11,000 of them in the shallow fields of southeastern Kansas. A large portion of them did not yield more than a barrel a day. Mostly they were owned by independent producers. Each stripper well was dependent upon a pipe line and upon the big companies as a market.

Trouble began with action by Prairie companies, which had fought young Landon in the local issue of his Blue Moose organization and continued fighting him as precinct and then as county committeeman and chairman of the state committee. The Prairie Pipe Line Company had been left without some of its former market because the refineries which had been its customers were building pipe line of their own. It abruptly refused to purchase more oil from the stripper wells.

The major companies, which were now becoming producers as well as purchasers in the new fields, decided that the little fellows must surrender to irresistible economic forces. It is said that Landon himself was now in a position in which he could have avoided much loss and probably shifted his own commitments for larger profits. However, let us take it for granted that his own interests were at stake, but that he was also fighting for a cause, bred in his blood, that of the little fellow against the big fellow, and more.

As the stripped men saw it, the initiative of the little fellows and the risks they had taken had opened up all new fields. They had the right to the use of pipe lines as common carriers and to the markets at the pipes' ends, in keeping with the practice through the years, which had established an obligation upon which the little fellows depended. All the income that many men had were a few barrels of oil a day and farmers depended on the royalties from the leases on their lands.

The stripped wells of today were the gushers of yesterday. Only a few years ago there had been a great outcry that the end of America's home oil supply was in sight, and public alarm lest we should not have oil of our own for our navy in case of war. To abandon the stripped wells was to dissipate a national resource.

A big meeting of the independent producers was held at Chanute in December, 1930. It named Landon as one of the committee of three, which was the "we" of the campaign he led. He went to Washington, but could get little comfort there. Publicity was a better aid.

"We'll send circulars to everyone except Santa Claus," he said.

Kansas and Oklahoma were aroused for the protection of their producers. Governor Woodring backed Landon. It happened that the Standard of Indiana, which shared the policy of the other major companies, had been the ultimate purchaser of much of the stripper oil and marketed much of its refined products in the stripper territory. Therefore, it became the main object of the attack. Its sales dropped in Kansas and Oklahoma "like a thermometer on a January night." A vice president of the Standard appeared on the scene. The local Standard representatives were between the fire in front and investigation from behind. Once more, in March, 1931, stripper oil flowed through the pipe lines.

But Landon did not shout from the housetops, "I am the man who did it." "We" did it together.

Perhaps this explains why, after the talk about Landon for the Presidency began, former Senator Smith W. Brookhart announced from Washington that Landon "is the Standard Oil 'Gugsa' set-up to carry the West for President" (Gugsa being Haile Selassie's son-in-law who joined forces with the Italians). Landon's own answer was that he had nothing to say.

So I looked up the record in this, too. Blasts had come in an from Kansas, Oklahoma and as from Wiener, the presid the Kansas Stripper Oil As tion, from Wirt Franklin, and officials and leaders of the pendent Oil Producers associ —all in vigorous and factual

The World of Tulsa, Oklah which is Democratic and Roosevelt said:

"It is generally thought in Oklahoma and lower Kansas Mr. Landon skated rings a the Standard in the plum th of the Arkansas, Caney and gris in the good old summer and that the ambition of Standard scouts was to hang don's hide on a guy wire. If S and did fall in love with Alf the trimming he gave them news never got down to parts."

If Landon were nomina Republican candidate fo Presidency The World wa pared to "take a few sho him . . . Our determinatio support Mr. Roosevelt wil prevent us from trying t fair . . . Whatever shots we at Landon will not be bas trumped-up, baseless accus for purely political consum Hanging the Standard Oil on don sounds very much like a ass braying down an empty rel and mistaking the nois facts and profundity."

Landon's political fortune peared at low ebb when f defeat for renomination in th maries called for a new cha of the state central committe

Some friends wondered were not out of active politi good and would not settle to business and the satisfacti home life. In January, 1930, h married Miss Theo Cobb.

But defeat had put him o mettle. Not only that, but had learned from his diffi with Reed and his close stu state administration convince that there were certain re which he believed that his cal and business experience enable him to work out.

Kansans had a surprise wh January, 1932, he announce candidacy for the Repu nomination for the governo That was very early. Th nouncement was brief and I quote:

"All of us in Kansas ar more interested in the eco of the situation than in p I think everyone will agre the first step in economics get everything in this state paying basis—cut down ex

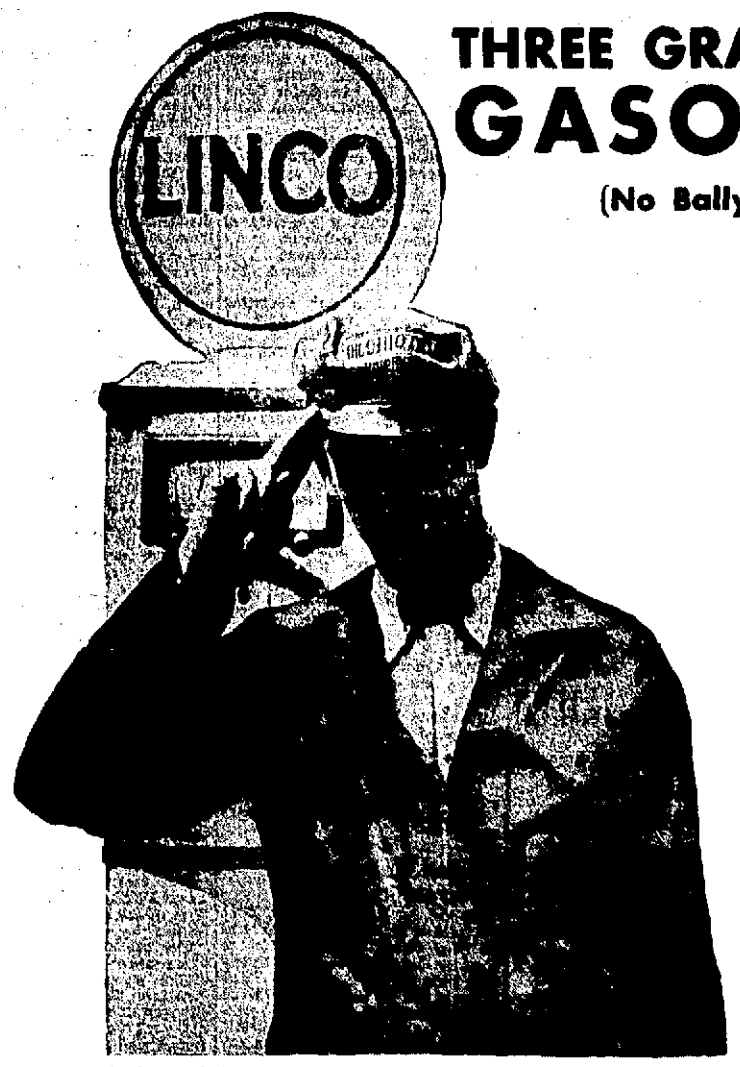
At Chautauqua Lake, N. Y., where John and Anne Messman Landon, attracted by religious meetings, spent many of their summers, Alf M. Landon often visited his parents. There, as at Conneaut lake in his boyhood, he indulged his hobbies of fishing, swimming and boating. There, in 1914, he met Margaret Fleming of Oil City, Pa. Romance on a moonlit lake . . . love . . .

Marriage followed on January 9, 1915, for Landon and the pretty girl from Pennsylvania, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fleming. The couple set up housekeeping in Independence, Kansas, where Landon at 27 was rising rapidly as an oil operator with interests in the "poor man's field" (so called because oil was near the surface and drilling inexpensive) in Oklahoma as well as in Kansas.

On April 3, 1917, a daughter was born to the Landons. Christened Margaret Anne and ever since called "Peggy," the baby is shown on her father's knee at about 18 months. Now 19, she is a student at the University of Kansas, her father's alma mater. She was a sophomore last term.

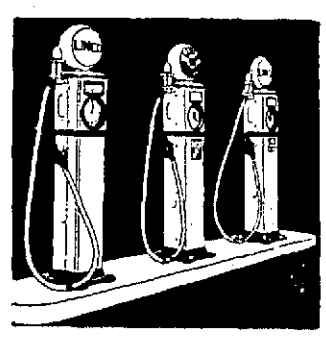
Tragedy followed close on romance and parenthood for Alf M. Landon. Never strong after the birth of her baby, Margaret Fleming Landon was sent to Colorado Springs to recover her health. There, in June, 1918, she suffered a sudden relapse and died before Landon could reach her bedside. Her death followed by only two years that of Landon's mother at Chautauqua Lake in 1916. His father still is living.



A choice of three grades of gasoline is another of the many conveniences in dealing with the LINCO man.

THREE GRADES OF GASOLINE

(No Ballyhoo)



WHEN the LINCO man puts into your tank any of the three grades of gasoline you specify, he is giving you gasoline refined from the cream of the crude of The Ohio Oil Company, one of the world's largest producers of crude oil.

There are no trick names to LINCO gasolines. You are not asked to absorb a host of pseudo-scientific facts. Neither octanes nor steps (whether down or up) are hurled at you. There is no new LINCO gasoline today and a still newer one next week.

LINCO gasolines are constantly improved as careful research and experimentation dictate. They are changed at the refinery to meet the demands of the seasonal variations in temperature. A happy balance is obtained whereby LINCO gasolines are so refined as to answer the requirements of the newer motors, yet still satisfy the demands of the old.

HALF OF VETERANS TURNING IN BONDS

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., June 19—One hundred fifty-one of this community's 300 World War veterans today had submitted applications to Postmaster Calvin S. Prater of Kenton for cashing bonus bonds totaling $61,975. Approximately as many more are retaining their bonds, for the present, and a few are just now applying for them, it was learned.

A similar percentage of applications for payment in cash was noted at Alger, McGuffey, Ada, Dunkirk, Ridgeway, Mt. Victory and Forest postmasters.

WHEAT PRICES JUMP NEAR 5 CENT LIMIT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 19 — Official confirmation of critical conditions of United States spring wheat crops pushed prices up this afternoon to around highest limits allowed in any one day.

Both in Minneapolis and Kansas City, the actual maximum limit was reached, a rise of 5 cents a bushel. In Chicago, the extreme upturn was 4¾ cents.

Tumultuous buying was increased in the late dealings owing to anxiety as to domestic winter wheat as well as spring being damaged by dry hot winds.

Wheat in Chicago closed flurried 3¾@4¼ cents above yesterday's finish, July 81⅝@81¾, Sept. 82⅜@82½, corn 2¼@3 cents up, Sept. 63⅝@⅞, oats 1¼@1½ advanced, and provisions showing 12 to 20 cents gain.

STOCK MARKET ERRATIC TODAY

Early Selling Puts Crimp in Trading on Wall Street.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 19—It was a "hit-or-miss" stock market today, with the misses being in the majority.

Early selling of the steel leaders put a crimp in trading sentiment. Support appeared later for selected issues and a number of these were up fractions to a point or so around the fourth hour. Favorable earnings and hopes of dividend increases gave another lift to Philip Morris and Zenith Radio. Improvement also was registered by Chrysler, American Can, Liggett & Myers "B," Standard Oil of Indiana, U. S. Pipe & Foundry, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Lowe's, Union Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio.

American Telephone backed up 2 points on threats of a rate cut for its New York subsidiary. Among lesser losers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Western Union, Radio, Consolidated Edison, American Water Works, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Wilson & Co., Johns-Manville, Greyhound Corp., U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Parker Rust Proof, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central and Southern Pacific.

Bonds were irregular. Foreign gold currencies stiffened as the French finance minister announced the franc would not be devalued. Wheat turned strong on crop weather reports. Cotton was higher.

Holders of merchandising stocks read with satisfaction the weekend review of Dun & Bradstreet which pointed out that retail sales during the week bore more heavily to the brisk side as preparations proceeded for a broadening of activity during the early summer months.

Other surveys estimated department store sales in May recorded a year-to-year increase of 12 per cent, chain store distribution was up 15 per cent, and mail order turnover gained nearly 30 per cent.
